The curvy and windy roads take us to Telav, the capital of Kekheti. We lunch with a sight combining the steppe area and the Caucasian mountain range behind it. After Telavi we ride on to Signaghi, a cute town in which life seems to surround itself with wine. At our accommodation, home-made wine is ready, as well as all the Kakhetian specialities.

Day 2: From Kakheti in the East we are going to head up North; Kazbegi is the next destination. A mountainous region with peaks up to 5000 meter high. Views on this ride are just stunning. Mountain passes go up and down as they take you from corner to corner, a true Walhalla for any motorcycle enthusiast. Our accommodation offers the same views over the hilltops to allow us to enjoy the spectacular views through the night.

Day 3: The hometown of the former leader of the USSR is up next. After riding through the mountains landscapes change quickly, the natural diversity the country is known for. We take a small road to Gori to avoid the highway, the road is filled with beautiful colors of roadside flowers and views of endless hills and mountains. In Gori we pay a visit to the museum that attempts to document Joseph Stalins life. Afterwards we ride on to Borjomi, a beautifully lush region famous for its natural baths. Borjomi has been famous for quite a long while, since it was a very popular place for the Soviet elite to relax.

Day 4: We ride to the peaceful region of Racha. The whole region is quite undiscovered by tourists which makes it a great experience to ride through. If there are tourists it will mostly be Georgians that know exactly the beauty that the region has to offer. Stereotypes say that people from Racha are known for their calmness and to always take it easy. We spent the night in Oni, in a family guesthouse unlike any other. Make your own Chacha, Georgian flatbread and more.

Day 5: From Oni we head for Samagrelo. A culturally distinct region of Svaneti, with its own language and a delicious cuisine. From the most spectacular mountain roads with a calming scenery and little traffic we ride into the lower lands of Migrelia. We end up in Martvili, famous for its caves and canyons, where we have the chance to canoe down on.

Day 6: One of the most spectacular roads in the whole Caucasus. A newly made road in a region that has been culturally separated for centuries. Even the Soviets could never fully exert their influence cause of its remoteness. This is how Svaneti still feels like a different world. Also, it's why they were able to keep their customs and pagan traditions intact. On the road, old watchtowers will pop-up. Svan families own these towers and in the old days they were used to settle disputes which in practice meant shooting from one tower to the other. It's a place to be in awe and the stories about the Svan customs are impressive. One of the Georgian customs the Svans also hold is the love for amazing food. We spent the night at a local family.

Day 7: We discover Svaneti, the tower of our local host. The mighty Mt. Ushba and Tetnuldi. Since people have been living in Svaneti for such a long time, almost everywhere there is a dusty path taking you up to the most beautiful viewing points.

Day 8: We take the mountain roads of Svaneti down to Kutaisi. The second biggest and legislative city of Georgia. A very pleasant and relaxed city. Before we have a chance to visit Europe's biggest cave complex: the Prometheus cave complex.

Day 9: We depart for Tbilisi. On the way sceneries, will change quickly as climates and wheather conditions alter quickly in the small country. We visit the centuries old Jvari monestary which has a view down on the old capital of Georgia; Mtskheta. Back in Tbilisi we eat at one of the most authentic restaurants in town where old men often sing to honor their country, friends, and family. For a night cap, we visit the only real biker bar in town.
